

Pastoral Letter for January 2026

Happy New Year!

As I walk into this New Year I could make a million resolutions – ranging from the mundane (be more creative, bake cakes, remember to put the bins out every week, mow the lawn more than once this year, go proper food shopping once in a while) to the more meaningful (choose a better attitude, be more intentional with my time, speak less, love more.)

The likelihood is that most of them won't even get off the starting blocks. But I might write a list at some point. Just to make it feel like I am trying.

I do love a list. In the jumpy-round chaos that so often makes up my thought processes, the humble list is my happy place.

So, I decided I would at least start the year on a positive note: With a list (to remind me why writing a list might help me achieve some of my aims!) Here we go...

1) Lists are solid. Thoughts are fleeting. But a list? I can see that. I can't forget I need to do something if it's written down before my eyes (can I?)

2) Lists are a positive action. Even if I can't face doing something, at least I have acknowledged it needs doing. On some days, that's progress!

3) Lists bring order. They are like a map. I can see where I am and where I need to be and what I need to do to get there.

4) Lists are encouraging. A list with everything crossed off is a reminder that life does shift and move and that, even if it's one thing at a time, things can change!

5) Ticking things off a list feels good.

I wonder what is on your list for 2026? What are you looking forward to?

What are you hoping will change this year?

Whatever it is, I hope that you meet joy along the road - in the big things and the small. And I hope you can face difficult things with the assurance of love around you.

Happy New Year. Be blessed.

Lorna
